The 1947 JUMBO BOOK is being published at a significant moment in the long history of Tufts College. Untrammelled by time-worn precedents, this book marks a departure from the old customs and practices it stands for something new. We hope it symbolizes not merely the birth of a new line of yearbooks, for that it is relatively unimportant, but rather the heginning of a new and better life for the College on the Hill.

Already there have been some great changes at Tufts, and undoubtedly more are yet to come. But our college needs more than new buildings and equipment; it needs a reexamination of aims and attitudes, a revitalization of spirit, a mature understanding of modern values.

It is our hope that by bringing attention to these things in this newest of yearbooks, these changes may be hastened, and the day may come when our Alma Mater realizes more fully her capabilities.

We hope that day is not too distant.

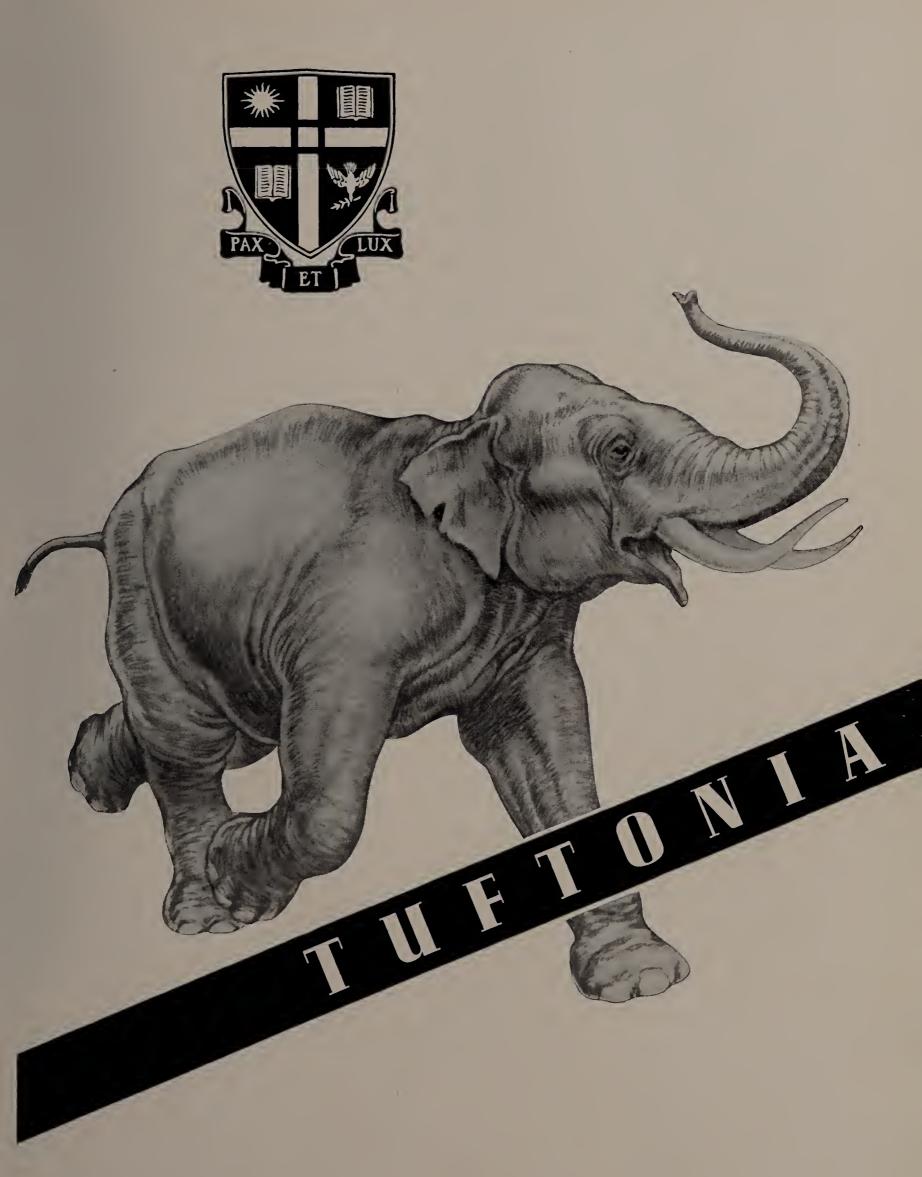

In four years, Tufts College has gone through a remarkable metamorphosis, beginning as a small regional institution, and emerging as one of the larger schools of its kind. Now, as in every other college in the country, Tufts is faced with the task of completing the education of many former students, and commencing that of many new men. This situation with its many concomitants, has plainly brought about some definite changes here.

Before the war, Tufts was a true "small college". The student body was closely knitted together, thanks to the traditional societies, which instilled the fundamentals of real spirit into a man from the beginning of his first year. Under the watchful eye of Sword and Shield, freshmen learned always to wear their hats, and keep off the grass, and to greet everyone on campus with a friendly "Hi". But the lessons implanted in these early years paid good dividends in student unity. A student's life revolved about college life, for everyone on Hill knew everyone else, and they all worked smoothly to-gether. Tufts was small, but it well deserved its reputation of a friendly College.

All these things ceased when the late global conflict broke out. It took a little while for the significance of Pearl Harbor to sink in, but mobilization was quick once it started. All college functions went into high gear, with three terms per year, and more concentrated courses. Everyone settled down to the hard grind, working and studying incessantly (three days off for Christmas), buying War Bonds, donating blood, collecting paper and scrap, doing everything possible to win the fight on the home front. Civilian students (and young faculty members) became increasingly rare on campus.

In July, 1943, the Navy landed—1000 V-12er's and 300 RO's. The campus gained a Navy blue tint that it retained for three full years, and "from there on in", most life revolved about the Navy. When they got up, so did everyone else—it was impossible to sleep late with companies staggering sleepily about the streets in the morning hours, morosely counting cadence. During the day, things quieted down somewhat. Classes were not unduly crowded, with Jackson and Navy forming almost the whole student body. Many extra-curricular activities died out, but some, like the Weekly and the Tuftonian kept going. The Navy initiated a few of its own:

Friday night Happy Hours, the annual march to the Tufts-Harvard football game, the innumerable drills climaxed by the semesterly color competition.

Navy slang became accepted speech—one "hit the sack", or stood in "chow lines", or "swabbed the deck". If one were a member of the Unit, one was apt to "hit the sheet" for needing a haircut or wearing unmatching shoelaces or stowing one's drawers improperly.

All the while, things were getting better for our side. The power of an aroused America could not be stopped, and on May 8, 1945, V-E Day came—but classes continued. Many Tuftsmen were still serving throughout the world. Then came the world-shaking events of August—the two atomic bombs, and on August 15, 1945, V-J Day. The war was over, but the Peace was just begun.

Campus life began to slow down to a more normal peace-time rate. The Navy Unit dwindled away, exerting continually less influence on college affairs. Students from all years began to return in ever-increasing numbers. Old customs and traditions were slowly reestablished.

The present Senior Class reorganized at an early date, and held their Junior Prom in May at the Gym. Tufts Night at the Pops followed soon after, and was a rousing success. New buildings began to go up—the Hamilton Pool, the ME Lab, and for married students, Stearns Village. But the spring semester of '46 was only a harbinger of times ahead.

The short summer semester found few students on Hill, for most people were taking a well earned rest. But the Fall term of '46 marked the inception of a new stage in the 95-year history of Tufts. Old students trooped back by the hundreds, and new ones poured in by just as many hundreds. A record enrollment of over 3000 was reached. Housing problems were seemingly insurmountable, classes were uncomfortably crowded, text-books were unavailable. Life was anything but collegiate. It was chiefly confused.

Many of the pre-war activities returned in full array. Fraternities, with the largest membership in years, were once again a potent force in campus affairs. The Honorary Societies, bulwarks of college activities, were reactivated, but the light election vote was a discouraging sign in a hopeful situation. Clubs and societies sprang up by the dozen, and it began to look as if Tufts was to have one of its busiest extra-curricular years. Athletics, greatly bolstered by the Navy during the war, reverted to its peacetime pattern. The teams were not all headliners, but the coaches and the men did their best, under unique and trying conditions.

But in the overall sense, the campus seemed to be afflicted with a sort of lethargy. True, activities of all sorts were being rejuvenated in surprising numbers, but closer examination revealed that only a small group of workers were actually responsible for these advances. Most people were simply not interested in taking a personal part in college affairs. The causes for this situation were complex, but one chief component was the greatly increased enrollment, which created a natural reluctance on the part of many persons to engage in activities with totally unfamiliar people. Attitudes developed by men who had suddenly matured during the war undoubtedly contributed to the complexity. In defense of these people, it has been suggested that the college is primarily a place to gather knowledge and gain wisdom, but it is questionable that these ends can be attained without a certain amount of outside endeavor in more social fields than are ordinarily found in classrooms. A person who is a scholar, and nothing more, is likely to be a dull character, and does not often contribute his due share to the whole community.

However, this year's problems seem to be those of a transition state, a sort of bridge between a purposeful, wartime Tufts, and a progressive, peacetime one. Only when the underclasses have been properly organized and trained, and when all the students, faculty members, and administrators, become thoroughly adjusted to these unprecedented conditions, will Tufts move positively forward. The new College on the Hill can be one of the leaders in the eternal task of appropriately educating young people for the future. To do this, many improvements should be made here, but they will take time. It should be the duty of every loyal student and Alumnus to give assistance in all possible ways to shorten this time, and to hasten the advent of the new progressive Tufts.

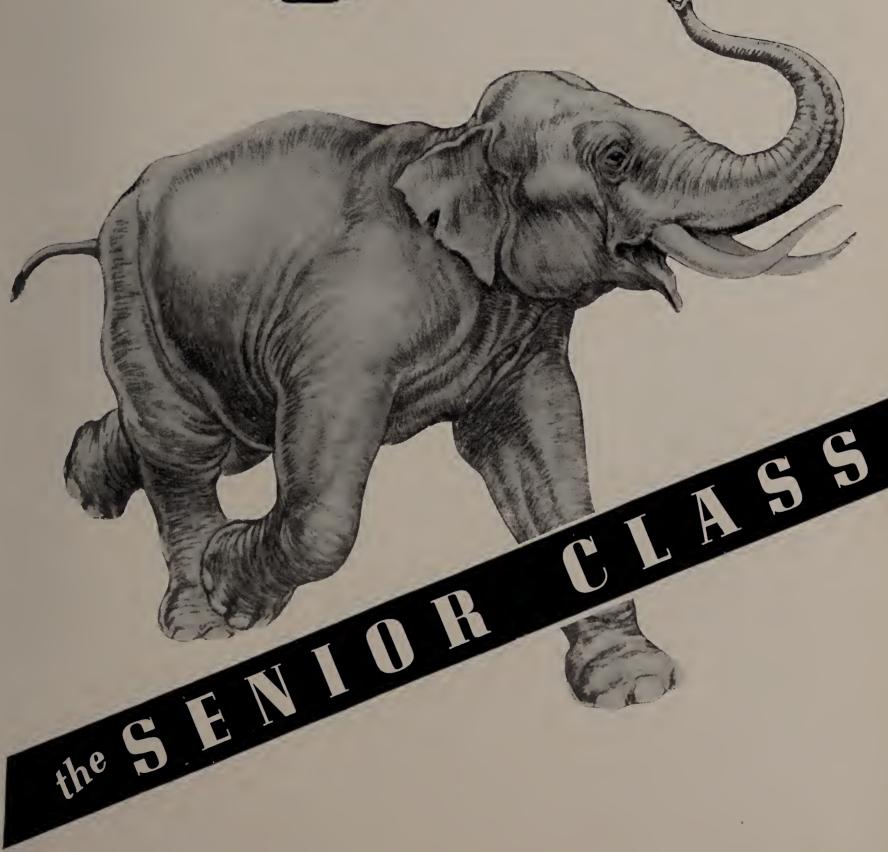

For the first time in four years, there will be a normal, peacetime graduation in June. However, the graduates will be anything but normal, peacetime students. That this is the largest graduating class in the history of Tufts College is no accident, of course, but it may be suprising to learn that over 550 people are receiving degrees this June. But besides being the biggest class, this group claims an additional distinction—there are representatives of every class from 1941 to 1948, since those whose education was interrupted or accelerated have retained their original class designations.

Naturally, with such a large, diverse group, there was bound to be a certain amount of disunity, due partly perhaps to the great number of relative strangers suddenly thrust together and called the Senior Class, but probably even more to a war-developed indifference to college activities. We certainly hope that, whatever the cause, this coolness will disappear before it can have a serious effect on future Tuftsmen. We believe that most people must do more than merely attend classes to reap the full benefits of a college education, for participation in all forms of activity, whether academic or athletic, is essential not only in developing the true character and spirit of a collegian, but also in preparing him for the rougher days after graduation.

Due to extenuating circumstances, this may not have been too applicable to some seniors, but nevertheless the long-run implications still hold. We want to see the future generations at Tufts bound together into solid, harmonious groups, which will always be capable of intelligent cooperation, and most important, which will always be activated by a true loyalty to their college and its people. Now is the time to lay the foundations for these generations.

In the activities section of the first full scale JUMBO BOOK since 1943 there are 45 organizations: a greater number than in any other year. These organizations represent 45 groups of people working and learning together; 45 opportunities to express interests and develop abilities. Each organization has different problems, different goals. They range from the ancient and wellestablished 3P's, which carried on valiantly through the war, to TUR, a relatively new group on the hill. Including musical, departmental, dramatic, religious, and social activities they represent an all-important phase of college life.

This year the JUMBO BOOK departed from the custom of illustrating the activities section with pictures of the club officers alone. Instead we have chosen to include all the regular members of the club in a group picture. This policy makes the book more representative of, and more interesting to the college as a whole. Another change has been in regard to the arrangement of the section. The clubs have been arranged in groups, each group containing clubs of a similar nature. We believe this to be a logical and interesting method and hope you will find it pleasing.

Honorory Societies I

Inactive during the war, the Honorary Societies' Tower Cross, Ivy, and Sword and Shield, have been reactivated and are attempting to reinstate the traditions that the college once knew so well. The elections, sponsored by the Student Council, were held in November. The light voting was an indication of the need for such organizations to maintain and strengthen the school spirit which is slowly flowing back into the college.

Tower Cross, the Senior Society, consists of ten outstanding men of the Senior Class. Since their election they have revised the old constitution which was adopted when the Society was founded in 1897. This step was essential because the methods of amending the constitution and provisions for meetings and dues had become outmoded in the fifty years of the Society's existence.

The Ivy Society, probably the most obviously active of the three, has sponsored several informal dances following home basketball games. The ten juniors comprising the group are charged with the duty of publishing the Ivy Book and planning and presenting the Junior Week-End. Other activities of the group include the selection of Junior Class Jackets and the conducting of Senior and Freshman elections.

Sword and Shield is the Sophomore Society, consisting of twelve outstanding men in that class. Of their various duties, the most important at present is the reestablishment and enforcement of freshman traditions. However, their other tasks which include acting as vigilance committee and as welcomers to visitors provide them with ample opportunity to serve the college community.

Since these societies were not reorganized until well after the school year had started, they have been less effective in their operation than normally would be the case. Four years will pass before the first class will have had an opportunity to complete their college education under the influence and surveillance of these traditional societies. Much work must still be done if there is to be a loyal, spirited student body for the great new Tufts of the future.

JOHN T. BYRNE Business Manager

Returning to the college scene after a four-year absence, the '47 JUMBO BOOK represents a new type of Senior Yearbook. Besides broadening the scope of former annuals, this year's edition has introduced some unusual new features in an earnest effort to make this Tufts' best yearbook. In spite of the greatly increased costs of printing, we have tried to keep the price of the book low, and yet maintain the highest possible standards. We hope we have achieved an acceptable compromise.

The mainstay in this ambitious undertaking was Jack Byrne, the modest but very efficient Business Manager. Assisted by Ad Men John Lange and Jordan Cohen, he has solved numerous problems in the financing of the book, and in addition has done much of the work of material organization. Second to Jack was Bill Wachenfeld, nominally the Photography Editor, but really the "Party Whip", perpetually occupied with some new project.

Frieda Gale, a lovely Jackson Editor in all ways, with Helen Heath and Shirley Humphries, helped in innumerable ways to lighten the load of publication. Dick Wyatt dashed off the Activities commendably, while fellow New Jerseyite Ed Vianney covered Sports quite adequately. In fact, the whole staff had a strong flavor of Jersey, since both Jack and Bill come from there, too. Harold Williams turned in a perfect job on Faculty, with Lou Goren organizing Tuftonia, and Steve Tutelian collecting Fraternity material.

All of these people gave generously of their time and effort, working towards the goal of making this the finest JUMBO BOOK ever to be published at Tufts. This work has not been easy, but it could and should be less difficult for the editors of the future, if only there is more cooperation and consideration evinced by the college. This is offered not as an excuse, but as a suggestion.

Under the guiding hand of John Holmes the Tuftonian continues to add depth and meaning to the college scene. Set up in 1940 as The Tuftonian, The Magazine of Tufts College, it is unique among college magazines in that it includes all students, all the faculty, and all the alumni in its group of potential contributors.

During the war, the Tuftonian took over the function of the Alumni Bulletin, but this year, with the largest staff in history, it has resumed its normal role. The student staff does the actual work of planning and much of the writing of the magazine, which is issued four times during the year. Containing, as it does, a varied subject matter, it provides interesting and vital reading for all.

The Tufts Weekly is the official newspaper of the college. Besides news items it contains such regular features as Around the Hill, Coed Campus Chats, Engine-airs, and Five Minutes with Prexy. To meet the high costs of publishing, the paper has been encumbered by an almost excessive amount of advertising. A study of other college newspapers is now being made in an attempt to improve the literary value of the Weekly.

One of the reasons for the initial lack of effectiveness of the paper can be traced to the student body, for a weekly college paper cannot hope to function without the contributions and support of the students. With the revitalization of college spirit and the application of remedies suggested by the study of other college papers it is expected that the Weekly will come closer to the goals for which it is striving.

PEN · PAINT AND PRETZELS

Three P's (Pen, Paint, and Pretzels) had its beginning in 1910. Since that time, it has grown steadily in importance and width of activity until now it is a vital part of life on the Hill. Although membership was originally limited to Seniors, in 1937 the eligibility was extended to include outstanding Juniors too. Elections are held in the spring so that the new members may assume some responsibility to prepare them for the following season.

Strengthened by the return of Dr. Marston Balch and the former members of the society who had served during the war, 3 P's began this season with a wealth of talent and experience. Thornton Wilder's forceful play, "The Skin of Our Teeth", was followed by a sophisticated production of Philip Barry's psychological theatrical, "Hotel Universe." "Three Men on a Horse" served to lighten the schedule with riproaring farce and regaling comedy. At the present time, plans are being formulated to produce the American premiere of an untitled European play, to be given as the final offering this year. Besides the week of presentations at the Jackson Gym, each play has been staged before off-campus audiences at various veteran's hospitals.

In a scene from Norm Ashton's original play, "Postscript," Harvey Powers apprehensively watches Ben Hamilton as Marjorie Shea and Art Rosenberg converse in the background.

George Vrattos, Marjorie Shea, Art Rosenberg, Naomi Solomon, and Gerry Finkleman look amused as Norm Ashton has words with Harvey Powers in a "Postscript" scene.

Veniette Caswell holds the stage of ''Hotel Universe,'' while, in the usual order, Madelon O'Rawe, Henry Bate, Jane Howarth, Stanley Schultz, and Don Howard look on.

The Odikon had its start in March 1944 when eight Tufts and Jackson students gathered in the home of Dr. Swan to sing for the enjoyment of singing. The group has grown to over twenty members and is now singing in concerts both on and off Hill. Last year their concerts away from the Hill included weekend trips to Burlington, Sterling, and Chatham as well as performances for the Medford Women's Club and for the Professional Women's Club of Boston. With all this progress, the Odikon singers carry on the tradition of their name—singing for the enjoyment of singing.

The religious clubs on Hill help the student maintain affiliations with the Church during his college years. Through comprehensive programs including outside speakers, discussion groups, church services, and social gatherings, they strengthen and guide young people in their various faiths. Often cooperating with groups from other colleges, they strive to be of service to the college community. Plans are being formulated for a closer cooperation among the groups in the future in sponsoring college-wide meetings to hear speakers of the different faiths.

The Engineers

The engineering societies help keep the budding engineer in touch with the latest developments in his field. Generally affiliated with the national society, they provide an opportunity to increase a student's understanding and knowledge of the engineering world. These societies enable the student to learn both through outside speakers and presentations of original papers.

One of the consistently active organizations on Hill this year has been the Varsity Club. Dedicated to the advancement of athletics, the club has displayed much originality and ambition in attaining its ends. Although membership is limited to winners of Varsity T's, the group has found time to sponsor a sub-freshman day and two highly successful sports dances, which were highlighted by the award of trophies to the most valuable players in each of the fall and winter sports. Those honored were: Richelieu Morris, soccer; Ted Vogel, cross country; Phil Barnhart, football; Ed Palmieri, indoor track; Ed Ham, basketball; Les Innis, hockey; Chuck Bordne, wrestling; and George Manthey, swimming. The club has also set up a far-sighted program for the improvement of athletics at Tufts, with high priority assigned to the securing of more

The club has also set up a far-sighted program for the improvement of athletics at Tufts, with high priority assigned to the securing of more adequate equipment and training facilities. We heartily endorse all these efforts to better athletic conditions here, but we hope that they may not be carried to the point where athletic ability is rated above scholarship. We do believe, though, that Tufts will have some outstanding teams in the future if the club follows through its present plans.

F O O T B A L L

After 16 years of football under the direction of Lew Manly, the Jumbo squad opened their first season of post-war pigskin activities with a new head coach. Fred (Fish) Ellis, four-letterman of the Class of '29, took over Lew's duties. It was not a propitious moment; Fish had done no coaching during his war-time service with the Army Air Corps, and had never seen most of the Tufts players before. The players themselves were unfamiliar with one another, since they came from many different years and classes. In addition, the team was plagued by injuries throughout the season.

The Jumbos had some fine material with such men as Junie Beers, Phil Barnhart (winner of the most valuable player award), Johnny Calagione, Al Webber, Chick Rutter, Charlie Fortin, and Hop McKinnon (Captain-elect of the '47 team). But somehow, the boys never seemed to get the breaks. The squad was steamrollered 49-0 in the season's opener against powerful Harvard, followed a week later by a 19-6 reversal at the hands of Bates. The B. U. game was evenly played during the first half, but the Terriers pulled away in the second, winning easily, 35-0. The next two weeks, the Jumbomen came close, losing 7-6 to Northeastern, and 25-20 to Amherst. Then, journeying to New London, the Tufts eleven gained their first victory of the season, an 18-13 victory over Coast Guard Academy. In the final game of the year against Mass. State, the team was powerless, and bowed, 27-0.

Although the squad's record was not good, still the boys were out there fighting every minute, almost always under difficult, trying conditions. They really deserve praise for their hard work. But, as with most Tufts sports, the watchword is "Wait till next year."

Fred M. Ellis, footboll coach, was selected to direct the 1946-1947 Tufts basketball team, thereby filling the position vocated by Richard Cochran who had coached the previous two years.

The season began with an impressive victory over Northeastern University. Led by George Blackburn who dropped in ten points, Tufts managed to maintain a constant lead throughout the game and leave the court victorious. The next five games with Harvard, American International College, Holy Cross, Amherst, and Brown were all defeats, with the powerful Harvard and Crusader teams completely dominoting the play. In the Amherst gome, Rocco Antonelli scored 21 points and Earl Tryder added 17 more but the Jumbo five was still defeated by a ten point margin. Trailing by 21 points of half-time in the Brown gome, the Tufts team, led by Tryder ond Blackburn scored 35 points in the final half only to lose by a close score. But this tremendous scoring spree continued through the next game as Tufts rolled up 89 points to completely trounce Bates. With Antonelli hitting the nets for 25 points and Eddie Hom, Nickerson, Tryder, ond Burgbacher eoch scoring over ten, the Jumbo hoopsters hit a new scoring high. The victory streak continued in the next two games as Mass. State and W. P. I. went down to defeat. Again it was Antonelli, playing his last game before graduation, and Tryder that led in the scoring. With Tryder dropping in 22 points and Nickerson and Cooney adding 16 and 12 points respectively, the Jumbos made easy work of W. P. I. After losing the next two games to Springfield and the University of New Hampshire, Tufts came back to win a close game from Bowdoin. It was the last half scoring of Nickerson, Kochiss, and Tryder that supplied the winning morgin. The next three games were all defeats but the loss to M. I. T. wos a heartbreaker, because coming from behind in the last seconds of play, Tufts tied the score forcing an overtime period, but finolly lost by a two-point margin, 60-62.

During the first half of the season Eddie Ham and Rocco Antonelli were co-captains of the teom, but ofter the groduction of the lotter, Ham remoined as coptain. His great passing and floor-play, os well as the excellent defensive work of Bob Cooney, added tremendously to the play of the team.

The Tufts Junior Varsity Basketball squad was directed by Lucian Colucci, who was also an assistant coach during the football season.

After losing the season opener to Exeter, the team came back with a victory over North-eastern. It was the scoring of Travis and Epstein that lead the way to the initial victory of the year. In the next game with Harvard, it was Travis again leading the way with 27 points but the remainder of the team couldn't find the net and Tufts lost by three points, 41 - 44. Once again the team bounced back after a defeat and this time, led by the last half scoring of Rosen and Epstein, they overcame a scoring deficit to defeat American International College. After losing the next game to the powerful Brockton YMCA team, Tufts returned to gain two consecutive one point victories. With Rosen, Talmage, and Epstein leading the way in the final minutes of each game, the Jumbos defeated both Monson Academy and Brown. The team then lost a close decision to Dean Academy, 55 - 61, before trouncing Wentworth Institute. In this game the scoring was evenly divided with Epstein, Rosen, and Schluntz all hitting double figures. After dropping the next game at Andover, the Jumbo Jay-Vees returned to win their last two games of the season, defeating the Quincy Veterans and M. I. T. Again it was the scoring of Epstein and Schluntz that led the way.

The team had a good season and Coach Ellis was quite satisfied with the basketball talents of the players. These men, along with the returning varsity players, will form the nucleus of next year's Varsity Basketball teams.

CROSS COUNTRY

The cross country team under the direction of William S. Yeager won two of the four meets during the year. The opening meet of the season was a pentagonal one with Holy Cross, Harvard, M. I. T., and Northeastern. Although Ted Vogel finished first, as he did in all but one of the meets, Tufts was unable to place enough men to win.

The following week against Dartmouth and M. I. T., Vogel broke Dunc Blanchard's previous record on the Tufts 3.8 mile course and finished first. Blanchard, Dickson, and Jolly were also among the first finishers but the team totals placed Tufts third.

Against Boston University in their third meet of the year, the Jumbos emerged with a wellearned victory. A planned three-way tie among Dickson, Blanchard, and Vogel was accomplished, and with Jolly and White finishing in the first ten, the victory was quite decisive.

The Tufts squad kept on their winning ways by defeating Northeastern University in the final meet of the year. Again it was the same three-way tie that led to victory, with Jolly and Callan also finishing up front.

In the New England Intercollegiate A. A. A. Cross Country Meet at Franklin Field, the defending champion, Ted Vogel, was defeated for the first time during the season. Although he still finished second, the remainder of the team failed to place and the Tufts harriers finished eighth.

Upon the completion of the schedule, Dunc Blanchard was named captain for the 1947 team.

The Tufts 1947 Indoor Track team under the coaching of Clarence E. Dussault and William S. Yeager had its first formal meet of the season on February 12 against Boston University at Cousens Gymnasium. By taking first in all events but three, the Jumbo tracksters won a decisive 63-36 victory. It was almost a complete sweep as Johnson and Collins finished one-two in the 50-yard dash, Wolozin took firsts in the high hurdles and high jump and a second in the broad jump, Blanchard paced the field in the mile, Vogel ran away with the two mile, Porter and Palmieri took the 300 and 600 yards respectively, Meagher and Luce won the shot put, and Dickson and Kendall added seconds in the 1000 yard run and the pole vault.

The following week, the team kept right on its winning ways by trouncing Northeastern University 57-38. Again it was Collins and Johnson in the 50 yard dash, Blanchard in the mile, Palmieri at 300 and 600 yards, and Wolozin adding seconds in the high hurdles and broad jump. Blanchard, Luce, and Kendall also came in second in the 1000 yards, shot put, and pole vault, respectively. Once again it was Ted Vogel who won the two-mile run, this time setting a new cage record of 9:35.5.

In their next appearance, the Tufts team reached their season scoring peak by completely dominating Conn. State, 77-40. As in the first two meets, Johnson and Collins took the 50 yard dash, Wolozin won the 45 yard high and low hurdles, the broad jump, and added a third in the high jump. Blanchard again ran away with the mile, as did Vogel at two miles, Palmieri, Porter, and Dickson took the 300, 600, and 1000 yards, and Meagher won the shot put and added a second in the 35 lb. weight toss.

In the I. C. 4A meet at Madison Square Garden in New York City, Ted Vogel came in third in the two mile run in the excellent time of 9:29. Ted Sparrow, although having graduated from Tufts during the winter was eligible to run and notwithstanding a severely injured knee, he still managed to place fourth in the high hurdles. Only the fact that this was his last race induced him to appear because his injured knee was a great hindrance. Blanchard was also entered in the mile and with Dickson, Porter, and McNally, appeared in the two mile relay. Ed Palmieri raced in the 600 yards.

The present team is one of the finest that Tufts has had, and we have every reason to look forward to a great, undefeated season.

With the completion of the new Hamilton Memorial Pool, Tufts began its first season of intercollegiate swimming under the direction of Larry Palmer. He has had the very difficult task of building a varsity team from men who had little or no competitive swimming experience in the past, but his success is shown by the marked improvement of the team as the season progressed.

High scorer of the year was George Manthey, who was awarded the most valuable player trophy in swimming. His fine work, and the constant efforts of Bosse, Chase, Hill, Hollander, Kajander, Pepper, Singer, and Welch, has kept the Jumbo squad rolling. Coach Palmer is highly pleased with his team's performance this year, and predicts a bright future for Tufts in New England swimming pools.

Wrestling

Once again under the direction of Sam Ruggeri, Tufts wrestling star during his college days, and coach of the sport at Tufts for over twenty years, the 1946-47 wrestling team maintained a pace in line with the general tenor of sports at Tufts this year. Although led by lettermen Chuck Bordne and Fred Lister, the squad as a whole suffered from inexperience and injuries, and was never able to display its full capabilities. However, Coach Ruggeri feels that, with a little time to gain experience and confidence, Tufts matmen will again be outstanding in the sport.

HOCKEY

Hockey has returned as an important intercollegiate sport, and Turts has become a member of the New England Intercollegiate Hockey League.

Coached by Harry Briggs, who was instrumental in having hockey recognized as a sport at Tufts, the team has come along very well against veteranstudded teams, the acme of perfection being reached in the New Hampshire game when Tufts defeated the Wildcats to topple them from the top position in the league; previously the New Hampshire team had been undefeated.

Les Innis and Charlie Kerrigan were elected cocaptains; they along with Bob Haines being the only returned veterans. Newcomers were Bill Duryea, Dave Egan, Eddie Gallagher, Roger Peck, Charlie Hutchings, Ed Shephard, Dick McLaughlin, and Hugh McPhee. Most of the team will be back next year, and a good year for hockey is anticipated.

SOCCER

Playing for the first time under the direction of Varsity Lacrosse coach John Bohn, the 1946 Tufts Soccer team concluded the season with a two-six record. Although handicapped by inexperience, the team, led by co-captains Richie Morris and Andy Feeney, and bolstered by John Kline in the nets, turned in a better performance than their record might seem to indicate. With the returning lettermen from this year, it is hoped that next year will be more successful.

1947 BASEBALL

The Tufts Baseball team is again under the able direction of John "Jit" Ricker. Coach Ricker, who first directed Tufts athletics while stationed here as a Lieutenant in the Navy, has returned from service, and after performing an excellent job as assistant football coach of the Jumbo eleven, he has once again taken over the position of head baseball coach. "Jit" has planned a heavy, sixteen game schedule for the team, but feels confident that between the returning lettermen and a host of new talent, he can obtain a strong nine which promises to give Tufts an outstanding baseball season. Among those men returning from past years are pitchers Bob Kozman and Bob Thomas, infielders Larry Lowe, Frank Bennett, John Calareso, Hop McKinnon, and Bill Kearns, outfielders Russ Brown and Thomas Boland, and catcher Will Hartman. Besides these men, there are many others who have played ball at other schools, and Coach Ricker has the very difficult task of forming a starting nine from this large group, but he has confidence in his men and is looking forward to a very good season.

1947 LACROSSE

The lacrosse team is again under the capable direction of John G. Bohn, who has been coaching lacrosse at Tufts for the past three seasons. Last year, Coach Bohn led the team to the New England Championship and it is both his and the team's aim to repeat that performance this year. Tim Ring, varsity coach at Tufts prior to Bohn, has returned as an able assistant and is taking charge of the junior-varsity team. A tough nine-game schedule has been planned for the season, but with the return of many veterans from previous years, as well as men who have played at other colleges, the team is beginning to take shape. Among those men returning from previous years are Larsh Mewhinney, Phil Roberts, Tom Robertson, Russ Bennett, Al Waldman, Brom Palamountain, Roger Peck, Frank Steeves, and Bob Hollander. It is still early in the season but the team has plenty of spirit and is looking forward to the opening game and another great lacrosse season for Tufts.

JACKSON SPORTS

Few people on the hill realize that Jackson has a greater variety of varsity teams than many of the leading colleges in this area. Hockey, basketball, softball, tennis, badminton, archery, and the recently organized swimming and bowling teams provide ample opportunity for all interested to participate in at least one sport.

"We, the fraternity undergraduates, stand for good scholarship, the guarding of good health, for whole-hearted cooperation with our college's ideals for student life, for the maintenance of fine social standards, and for the serving, to the best of our ability, of our college community. Good college citizenship as a preparation for good citizenship in the larger world of alumnae days is the ideal that shall guide our chapter activities."

These are the precepts guiding the Pan-Hellenic Council. In carrying out these ideals, the council acts as a governing body, deciding on necessary rules, and discussing any problems which may arise.

In addition to its governing activities, the Council also sponsors the Pan-Hell formal, one of the well-known social events in the college calendar. Perhaps less well-known is the fact that the proceeds of this dance are used to help support a young English orphan, Gerald. It is just such an endeavor which shows the true depth and meaning of the organization and its ideals.

Fraternities at Tufts have always contributed to the student community. With the aid of the Interfraternity Council, they have helped develop not only the spirit of the undergraduate American college, but also the spirit of the American in college, and have made him aware of his responsibility to the community as a whole.

After several wartime years of inactivity, the IFC reappeared last fall as the moderator of fraternity life on the Hill. This organization was founded in the spring of 1903 to relieve Tower Cross of the task of overseering rushing. This supervision has continued to be one of the main jobs of the Council through the years.

The most important act of the Council since its reactivation last fall was the abolition of hazing in fraternity pledging, and the recommendation that each fraternity institute a counsellor system to aid underclassmen academically.

Social duties of the Council include the presentation of the Interfraternity Ball, traditionally a part of Home-coming Weekend. This important event was held on November 15, and featured Billy Butterfield and his orchestra.

The Eta Deuteron Chapter of Alpha Epsilon Pi was formed on November 23, 1940, when Sigma Omega Psi, a national fraternity, was incorporated into AEPi. SOP had for many years been active in campus affairs and thus the new fraternity from the outset was one of the most promising of the thirty-odd AEPi chapters.

At Tufts, AEPi has always been distinguished by outstanding scholastic achievement. The Tufts chapter held the National AEPi Award given to the chapter maintaining the highest scholastic average.

Last February, AEPi vacated their old chapter house on College Avenue with plans of moving into its new home on Dearborn Road opposite Robinson Hall. One of the rooms in the new home is to be named for Bob Atlas who died serving his country.

It has long been the policy of AEPi to encourage a man to feel and act as an individual, and not as a mere cog in an academic or social machine. Every man is a distinct personality with hopes, dreams, and ambitions. It is the aim of AEPi to produce men who are not only trained in some special field but who are truly educated men — men of culture and depth, capable of thinking and acting independently and constructively. Thus, AEPi offers opportunity for social, intellectual, and cultural advancement.

The history of Alpha Sigma Phi at Tufts is a short one, for it was only in September, 1946 that the merging of two national fraternities brought the name of Alpha Sigma Phi to our campus. However, the house at 106 Professors Row, across from the Old Campus and the tennis courts, known heretofore as the Alpha Kappa Pi house, and the members of that fraternity, known as Kippies, have been a part of Tufts for many years.

The Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity, founded at Yale University in 1845, is the tenth oldest college fraternity. There are now fifty-two active chapters with close to 15,000 members. The objects of the fraternity are to encourage culture and high scholarship, assist in the building of character, promote college loyalties, perpetuate friendship, cement social ties within its membership, and to foster the maintenance of college homes by the chapters for their members.

In the past the Kippies have always taken an active part in all school affairs, and now as Alpha Sigs they are carrying on in this tradition.

The Alpha Tau Omega fraternity was established in 1865 at the Virginia Military Institute, where the three founders were students. From this beginning the fraternity has grown to the present ninety-five chapters in thirty-nine states, with a total membership of 44,000 at last reports. The Gamma Beta chapter at Tufts was founded in 1893, and since that time has grown steadily in size and activity.

The chapter house, located at 134 Professors Row, was used during the war as a girl's dormitory named in honor of Professor Dolbear. This September the house was completely refurnished and redecorated, and is now the home of twenty-four men.

The fraternity maintains a Placement Service, run by the National Fraternity, available to all actives and alumni. Recently a Veteran's Advisory Service has been added to aid veterans in obtaining jobs suited to their education and training.

Among the brothers of whom ATO can be proud is Dr. Vannevar Bush of Atom Bomb fame, now President of Carnegie Institute; our own Dean Miller, Vice-President of Tufts; Dr. Karl Compton, President of MIT; and Professor Littleton of the Engineering School here.

ATO is proud of the fact that it has so many members representing it in practically all the college activities, for it not only creates a feeling of unity among the brothers, but also promotes friendly relations with the other fraternities and college groups.

Delta Tau Delta, one of the oldest established fraternities, was founded at Bethany College, West Virginia, in 1885. It has grown to include seventy-four undergraduate chapters with an active membership of over 3,000, and seventy alumni chapters with over 35,000 members.

DTD pioneered in setting scholarship requirements which have placed it in the upper five among national fraternities. It has a Central Office supervising finances, which allows DTD to occupy an enviable position with its undergraduate loans, scholarship funds, and supervised budget system. In addition, there is a force of field secretaries who are constantly visiting the chapters, aiding and supervising in management and performance.

Beta Mu Chapter was established at Tufts in 1889 and has been in continous existence since then. Its first chapter home was Graves House, but the chapter has been at its present location at 98 Professors Row for 27 years, in a large, brick, Georgian-type house with spacious room and dining accommodations, and a beautiful basement "rec" room.

The Navy men who carried on so well during the war, the veterans who have returned to finish, and the new men are now welded together in a Beta Mu Chapter more appreciative than ever of the value of their fraternity in the building of all-around men worthy of the name.

Prominent Delts on Hill include Dr. Paul Warren, Dick Kelley, Joe Morton, Titus E. Mergendahl and Joel Reynolds.

In 1886 there was established on the Hill a non-secret society known as Tufts Chapter of Delta Upsilon. Its creed and aim has been to promote social and intellectual interests on an open basis among college men of like tastes. Thus, guided by the principle that secrecy is not essential to the aims of a college fraternity, DU has lived a progressive and useful life on the Tufts campus for sixty years.

The chapter is justly proud of the beautiful house on Professors Row now known as Knight House, with its large living room, colorful library, and spacious dining room. A large game room, paneled in knotty pine, occupies most of the basement.

Among the DU's on the college faculty are Dr. Stearns, Dean Tilton and Lew Manly. Delta Upsilon has long been noted for having members prominent in athletics and other college activities who at the same time maintained high scholastic standing. This past record is indeed a challenge to DU as well as to the other societies on campus. This year the fraternity took first place in Intramural Track and Football, and also won first prize in the annual Christmas Sing.

The nation-wide fraternity of Phi Epsilon Pi was founded in 1914 by seven men, and has grown to a total membership of 6,600 in 31 active chapters and 37 alumni associations. The Omicron chapter of Phi Epsilon Pi is looking forward to its thirty-second successful year on Hill.

In 1943, when the number of active members did not warrant the maintenance of a fraternity house, it was turned over to the college to be used as a men's dormitory. In 1945 the chapter again became active on the campus, and last September reopened its home at 8 Winthrop St.

Since its founding, Phi Ep has become one of the leading fraternities on campus; it has won the Jumbo Award for Scholarship more often than any other fraternity on the Hill. In addition, Phi Ep holds championship cups in many intramural sports.

Although the war caused a temporary cessation of activities, the Omicron Chapter of Phi Epsilon Pi again intends to take its place among the leading fraternities on Hill.

Theta Delta Chi was the eleventh fraternity founded in the United States, originating at Union College in Schenectady, New York, in 1847. Kappa Charge of Theta Delta Chi was established on the Hill in 1856, and is the oldest fraternity to maintain active and continuous existence at Tufts. Pioneering in national organization, TDC was the first to publish a fraternity magazine, and to award scholarships to outstanding students.

The present house, completed in 1932, is situated at 123 Packard Avenue. In the summer of 1943, the house was turned over to the Navy to be used as a Sick Bay and Headquarters. An outstanding feature of the house is its division into individual bedrooms and studies. In addition, a well-stocked library is maintained on the first floor, easily accessible for reference work.

Always a leader on Hill in interfraternity athletics, Theta Delta Chi has a large collection of trophies, and holds first honors this year in golf.

The annual social life of the fraternity includes two formal dinners as well as numerous informal dances, stag smokers, and banquets.

The Tufts Chapter of Zeta Psi has a history nearly as old as that of the college itself, for it was in 1855, only three years after Tufts admitted her first students, that five undergraduates decided to organize a society composed of "congenial friends bound together . . . where loyalty, truth, honor, and fraternal affection are the guiding principles." These men decided to affiliate themselves with the international fraternity known as Zeta Psi . . . thus Zeta Psi came to Tufts as the school's first fraternity. Scarcely had the chapter been established when virtually all its members left school to fight in the Civil War. In 1864 the returning veterans combined — as now — to rebuild the chapter.

In 1898 the chapter bought the house of Professor Shipman for a home. Since that time alterations have been made, but the Colonial character of the house has been preserved, and even today, the shield of the Shipman family, long prominent in Tufts circles, may be seen on the stairway arch.

Many well-known Tuftsmen have been members of this fraternity. The late Leo Lewis was a Zete, and since his days as an undergraduate, the chapter has been called "the singing fraternity". Other faculty members who are Zetes include Dr. Carpenter and Jan Friis.

Today, as well as in 1860, the Tufts Chapter of Zeta Psi is known as a friendly fraternity, where men develop not only as students, but as well-rounded people, aware of their responsibility to themselves, Tufts, fellowmen, and the world.

The Alpha Omicron Pi fraternity was founded in 1897 at Barnard College, Columbia University, New York. It has grown to include forty-two chapters in twenty eight states, and three chapters in Canada. Delta Chapter was established at Jackson College in 1908, and has a present membership of forty-seven girls, who are under the direction of Mrs. George Angell.

Always a campus leader, AOPi last year won the prize cup for the best scholastic record among sororities. Social activities this year included several teas and a weekend on Cape Cod.

Among the more famous members of Alpha Omicron Pi are novelist Mary Ellen Chase, and LIFE photographer Margaret Bourke-White.

Alpha Xi Delta fraternity was organized at Lombard College, Galesburg, Illinois, in 1893. It now embraces fifty-five undergraduate chapters and over seventy alumni chapters, with more than seventeen thousand living members. Lambda Chapter of Alpha Xi Delta was founded at Jackson College in 1907, and at present has forty-four members.

In recent years, the chapter has held its meetings at Dick Kelley's house at 17 Chetwynd Road, but with the completion of Dick's new residence next to Stratton Hall, the chapter will move its rooms there.

Alpha Xi is perhaps best known on campus for its annual Test for Talent show. Last year this show netted the chapter over three hundred dollars which they donated to the Student Federalists. Activities this year have included an informal dance and also a rummage sale, to secure means for sending two delegates to the National Convention in Canada.

Among the notable women of Alpha Xi Delta are Mrs. Burton Kairns, assistant to painter Diego Rivera, and Mrs. H. D. Cosho, a member of the House of Representatives from Idaho.

Chi Omega, the first Greek letter society for women on a national scale, was founded at the University of Arkansas in 1895. Now it is the largest organization of its kind, having 97 chapters located in all but six of the states. Chi Alpha Chapter was established at Jackson College in 1910.

Among the 58 present members are some of the most active girls on campus. There are representatives of Chi O in all the Jackson Class offices, the Student Council, all publications, and most clubs and organizations on Hill.

Sororities activities this year have included a pledge banquet and dance, a Christmas party for the youngsters of the South End Settlement House, the annual sorority bridge, and a special Mother's Day program.

Prominent members of Chi Omega include Elsie Oakes Barber, author of the recent best seller "The Wall Between", and Margery Nicolson, first woman president of Phi Beta Kappa, and Dean of Smith College.

Sigma Kappa fraternity was founded at Colby College in Waterville, Maine, in 1874, and was incorporated in 1904. Omicron Chapter was established at Jackson College in 1913, and now has fifty members.

One of the most important social events in the winter calendar is Sigma Kappa's Masquerade Ball, which was held this year at the Hotel Commander. Other activities of the chapter included the Grand Spring Reunion and an informal bridge party.

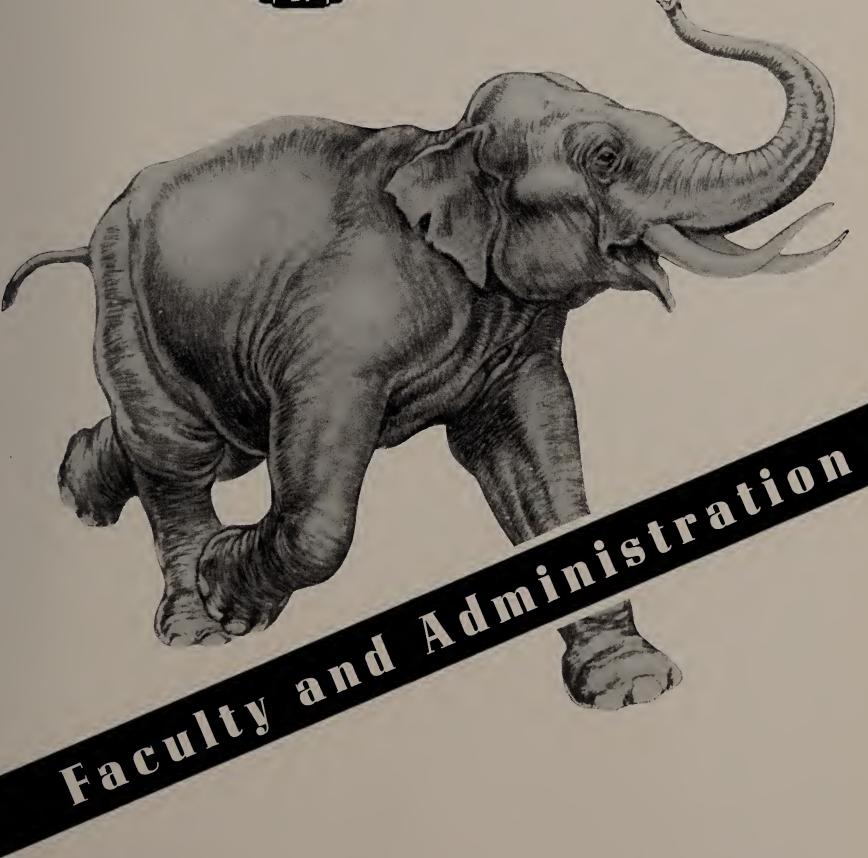

Among the notable members of Sigma Kappa is Mrs. Harold Burton, wife of the Supreme Court Justice.

Sigma Kappa

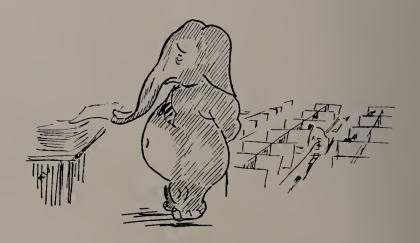

In a decided departure from the style of recent JUMBO BOOKS, this year's edition has included pictures and short sketches of every faculty member who would submit to the ordeal of being photographed, plus a few more who wouldn't. It is felt that this is a more appropriate method of treating this section, since it concerns many of the people who so decidedly influence a student's life at Tufts and his subsequent career.

Since Tufts College is a university in all but name, its teaching staff is actually divided into several faculties, including those of the School of Liberal Arts, Jackson College, the Engineering School, School of Religion, and Graduate School. Before the war, each associated school was small, affording opportunity for small classes, with a resulting intimacy between students and professors which formed a familiar pattern in the friendly, "small-college" atmosphere of Tufts. Now, with so many more students on the Hill, crowded classes are common, and individual instruction, although especially desirable in upper class years, is rarely feasible. But other vital services, such as the counseling system, continue unchanged.

From the beginning of the freshman year, instructors guide students in their course choices and in other academic problems. Deans and faculty advisors, through conferences, encourage students to select the proper courses not only in their majors, but also in many other fields. The aim here is to turn out intelligent, well-informed individuals, with the all-around knowledge and appreciation befitting college graduates. In the senior year, this service is logically extended to include guidance in professional problems and job selection.

At the present moment there are over 200 members on the teaching and executive staffs of the various schools on the Hill. As a small gesture of appreciation for their work, we have set aside these pages for them.

The Tufts Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps Unit was commissioned in 1941 under Captain Charles H. J. Keppler. Captain Keppler was relieved in 1942 by Captain Preston B. Haines, who remained in command of the Unit until his retirement in 1945. During the war, the complement of the regiment reached a maximum of over 1100 men, forming the second largest Navy College Unit in New England.

With the end of the war, reconversion began and the Unit was gradually reduced to a shadow of its former size. Captain Douglas V. Gladding, who took command after Captain Haines retired, has headed the station since November, 1945, directing the demobilization of the war-time unit, and the installation of the new peace-time NROTC.

In this new organization, created under the Holloway Plan, freshmen are selected by screening and physical exams, and may choose to become either Regular or Contract students. Regular students have all tuition and other academic expenses paid by the Navy, and in addition receive $600 yearly pay. During summers, these students are required to take cruises lasting six to eight weeks, or in the case of Marine Corps candidates, to attend summer camps for the same period. Upon completion of the required Naval Science courses, they are commissioned as Ensigns in the Navy, or Second Lieutenants in the Marine Corps, and must serve on active duty for at least 15 months.

Contract students pay their own tuition, but take exactly the same courses and drills as Regular students, receiving subsistence of one commuted ration per day (65 cents) during their Junior and Senior years. They are required to make only one summer cruise, of about 13 weeks duration. Upon graduation, they are commissioned Ensigns, USNR, or Second Lieutenants, USMCR, but are not required to go on active duty.

Also a part of the Unit is a small group of V-5 students, who after doing two years of college work, will be assigned to flight training. In addition there is a handful of commissioned Naval aviators, who are completing their college education while still in the Navy.

To provide for the complete training of all NROTC students, there are now two modern equipment rooms, supplied with the latest Navy Training Aids and Devices, besides the prominent gun pit and the rifle range. The present enrollment, slightly over 100, allows a compact organization, resulting in more thorough and complete training than ever before possible. The Tufts NROTC Unit, now a permanent establishment, already is recognized as one of the most outstanding in the country.

Acknowledgments

It has been a hard battle to publish this first real post-war Jumbo Book, but somehow we seemed to have survived. Our greatest debt in this venture is to Mr. Russell C. Knight of the Stobbs Press, whose ingenious and tasteful designing has made this a custom-built book from cover to cover. Although responsible for the set-up of many other annuals, he has consistently given special consideration to the multifarious Jumbo Book problems. It would be very difficult to over-exaggerate the value of his craftsmanship; we can only say that we are extremely fortunate in having been associated with him, and we are deeply thankful for his unselfish labors. We also wish to acknowledge the valuable services, especially in financial matters, of Bill O'Connor, president of Stobbs Press.

We are greatly indebted, too, to Frank Waid and his staff at Waid Studios, who have rendered fine photographic service. It is only the lack of space which prevents the printing of all the excellent shots taken for the book.

At the college we must particularly thank Lois MacDonald of the Vice-President's Office for her continued helpfulness in many ways, and we must generally thank all the student, faculty, and administrational staff members who have helped us in many ways throughout the year.

And, lest we have forgotten anybody, we wish to say to everyone who contributed to the success of the book —

"Eye of the Commonwealth"

Precision, craftsmanship, service, a tradition for quality since 1833 These have carried the A-O reputation around the world and carved a respected and honored niche in the ranks of New England industry for Southbridge, Mass. Known popularly as the "Eye of the Commonwealth," it is where American Optical Company started and now conducts its principal activities.

Fine ophthalmic lenses, frames and mountings, precision optical machinery are made in this southern Massachusetts community. Recent years have brought major expansion, however, until now A-O manufactures ophthalmic and scientific instruments at Buffalo, N. Y., safety lenses and body protective equipment at Putnam, Conn., sun glass, safety and ophthalmic lenses at Brattleboro, Vt.

Thus, A-O, while preserving its standing as a local industry in New England, has at the same time become known the world over extending its operations to 288 branches in the United States and Canada.
